Recently named "Favorite New Country Star" at NewCountryStar.com in Nov. 2006. Charting a #2 song on the Super Country Radio Top 100 Chart for Oct. 2006, with a 2nd single now released from his debut album, Jeff Taylor is well on his way. Jeff now resides in Nashville Tennessee but did not start out there. Jeff was born in Owensboro, Kentucky where he lived until he was two years old. His parents moved to Indianapolis, Indiana to find work and Jeff became a Hoosier. Living in small towns in central Indiana, Jeff completed grade school and graduated from Lebanon Senior High. He became interested in guitar and country music at age fifteen and formed a band the following year. Growing up in Indiana, Jeff says, made it difficult to remain true to his country roots - "It did give me the freedom to explore music that I now know is an influence in my writing. You can hear a little "Indiana sound" in my music sometimes and I think it works out just fine. At age fifteen, I was in a place and time when country definitely wasn't cool, so I learned to adapt." Jeff, at an early age, would soon develop his signature guitar playing style and naturally began songwriting. He composed music from his teen years to the present and has written and produced his debut album, "Southern Influence". Jeff developed his singing ability by learning to reproduce the vocal styles of Waylon Jennings and Don Williams and his music began it's powerful and dynamic journey.

Jeff's music today represents many musical genres and is rapidly gaining popularity with music-goers. His new album is a collection of work that best describes his life. Songs like, "Who I am" and "Garage for Sale" hit home for the artist. "It's my life", Jeff says. The title cut, written with his roots in mind, explains Jeff's regard for the legends of country music. "I'm just giving a little credit where credit is due!" In 2006, Jeff made Nashville Tennessee his new home. Driven to become a major force in the music industry it was only a matter of time until he would relocate from Indiana. "Indiana will always be a part of my life, but the move was important to me and my career. I needed to bring this big Hoosier sound to Nashville. It's something I've been meaning to do for quite awhile."

Jeff is a performer and an active songwriter registered with ASCAP. He has collaborated with such renowned writers as RCA recording artist Razyzy Bailey, MCA artist Robert Reynolds of Mavericks fame, and the Tennessee Songwriter Association International's 2003 "Songwriter of the Year", Mark Trail to name a few...

Jeff is currently touring the U.S. and may be headed for a city near you. Watch the calendar page for the current schedule.
